

Hi! We are Amber and Kevin. We would like to tell you a little bit about ourselves. When I think back on our lives together, it's funny just how intertwined our lives were. Our older brothers (who are about 8 years older) were good friends when they were growing up and played baseball together. You would think that Kevin and I would have played together, and were friends. But, it wasn't until 2006, in our senior year of high school that we became best friends. We played the "will they or won't they" games for years. Finally, in 2009 we officially started dating and 10 short months later we were engaged. And, this past September, we celebrated 7 years of marriage. We like to think that we are a fun couple. We laugh a lot and enjoy being goofy with each other.

We also enjoy playing board games, going to the beach, watching Netflix, bowling, and playing mini golf together! We just enjoy being together.

We have two adorable pets, a dog and a cat. Penny, our dog, is your typical small, playful dog. She loves everyone that she meets and will be such a great playmate for our child. Callie, our cat, is your typical lazy cat. All she does is sleep all day and eat. We have nicknamed her Garfield. As much as we love our furry babies, we long for a child of our own to love.

We have known since before we got married that we would not be able to have biological children of our own. I, unfortunately, am unable to have children, due to my congenital heart defect. However, it is our dream to be parents and adoption would make our dream a reality. While adopting a baby would be a dream come true for us, we also know that this will be one of the hardest decisions that you will ever make. With that being said, we admire your strength, your courage, and above all else, the love you have for your child. We promise to always love, nurture, and provide a safe, loving home for our child. We will always encourage, support our child's hopes and dreams, no matter what they are. We want to thank you for reading our story. We are so honored that you are taking the time to get to know us and considering us to be possible adoptive parents for your child. You can rest assured that your child will always be loved. We are praying for you daily and we are so thankful for you! God has a plan for you and your baby.

Thank you again and God bless,

Amber and Kevin
